WHAT IS JMEC ?

A 7-month program designed for full-time working professionals with lectures on Saturdays.

A program to support mid-career managers develop practical business skills and hands-on experience.

A program that attracts men and women from typically 15-20 countries and diverse professions.

JMEC AS A CORPORATE L&D PROGRAM

Many companies have found that JMEC is an attractive training program, providing a valuable and unique experience for their high-talent employees—especially as they get to conduct research and analysis, and develop and write a comprehensive business plan for real business projects from real companies.

Companies that have sent employees to JMEC for training include Hewlett Packard, Danone, MetLife, Google, AIG, Louis Vuitton, TUV SUD and many others.

"JMEC provided me with an opportunity to work in a diverse, multi-cultural team, and the confidence to leave my comfort zone. It deepened my understanding of how a business entity is managed. My employer, HPE, is a large company so it has always been difficult for me to understand the big picture, but JMEC gave me great insights. Now I understand much better how, in HPE, every transaction keeps the company running. This has had a huge impact on my career."

Izumi Yamamoto,
Hewlett Packard Enterprise Ltd.
